ANGLER'S CORNER

By Roger Hare

The bluefish moved in along our shores last week and you can catch them now off Minot Light, Humarock Beach or between the Bug Light and the Gurnet at the entrance to Duxbury Bay. You will have to look for them along the beaches but a good sized school is hanging in the channels at Duxbury Bay.

It's not necessary to go all the way to Provincetown looking for bluefish. A lot of mackerel were chopped up last week off Scituate by these blues as they tore into the tiger striped fish off the beaches of Scituate. You can take blues in the surf at any beach, and a very hot spot is off Duxbury Beach between High Pines and the Gurnet Light. Use a popper like Stan Gibbs' mackerel colored popper. I prefer the ounce and a quarter size, but others like the two ounce size colored white.

Another good plug to catch blues in the surf is the blue and white Atom swimmer with the white buck tail trailing hook and others are the Rebel and Rapala swimmers. Just about any plug will catch blues now, and it is not necessary to cast it out very far. I have just heard that blues were caught last week off the jetties at Scituate and off the beach at the entrance to Quincy Bay.

There was a school of striped bass early last week off the beaches at Manomet and at Plymouth beach and surf casters caught several 15 pound sized fish. Two larger 30 pound bass were caught in Quincy Bay on live pogies.

Lou Civitarese of Marshfield fished with Paul Atkinson just outside Green Harbor and caught a mixed bucket of fish including several small cod, some pollock and one nice 1a utog or black fish. He also caught one sea robin.

The Giant Bluefish Tuna fishing slowed considerably last week, and there were a couple of days when no fish were caught at all. This is a sharp contrast to last year's fishing when the weekly catch averaged about a hundred fish. The quota of 1750 tuna was reached last year just after Labor Day. This year's quota will not be reached. Killer whales are the reason. They are eating the tuna in the Southeast corner of Stellwagen Bank.

Mike Gaetano called me last week and reported that he thought he had seen a Manta Ray jumping out of the water at the entrance to Green Harbor. I have never heard of a Manta Ray this far north and have never heard of one jumping from the water. Perhaps it was a large skate, but I have never heard of one of them jumping either.

I have been busy moving all week from our big home on Forest Street, Marshfield to 245 Webster Street. It is a smaller house and I am having a problem fitting all of my fishing gear in. Before moving I got out bluefishing one day with Robert Milardo and Wayne Thomas, Marshfield's Eames Way principal. We caught 30 large blues off Provincetown using hoochys, rebels and rigs. I caught several on top with a Stan Gibbs mackerel popper.

My phone will be connected again today, so call me with those fishing reports at 834-9337.
